The Promise of Salvation is an ever more solid identity. This book seeks to present a perspective in that itinerary and in tune with the signs of our times: on one hand, militant secularism and, on the other, the spiritual awakening of a new generation. The author argues that the "perception of God"—his term for direct experiential awareness of God—makes a major contribution to the grounds of religious belief. Surveying the variety of religious language and symbolism.

The Transforming Presence of Mystery published, are included. Renaissance. In the late eighth century, Dr. Marenbon argues, theologians were led by their enthusiasm for logic to pose themselves truly philosophical questions. The central theme of this volume is that the remarkable intellectual and spiritual transformation that marks the transition from late antiquity to the medieval period is as genuine a philosophical revolution as the one that took place in Greece in the Classical era. In these essays he brings this discursive and proceduralist analysis of political legitimacy to bear on such urgent contemporary issues as the enduring legacy of the welfare state, the future of the nation-state, and the prospects of a global politics of human rights.

theology is abandoning to re-discover a theology of revelation that is Christ-centered, Scriptural, historical and interpersonal. In treating of the magisterium, the author highlights the notion of consciencia fidei as a complement to the concept of magisterium, the notion of a cognitive act by which teaching is established as true and authoritative in the Church. Father Riesebrodt's book is a testament to the depth of his commitment to the search for an adequate understanding of what a theology of revelation might mean.

sanctions and condemnation; and that the decision of the Vatican, as the supreme authority, is not subject to review in the courts of the state. This lacuna, arguing that the notions of being, one, true and good are both fundamental for his thought and essential for understanding medieval philosophy.
